G. A. MCCARTHEY.

American Diplomacy in the Orient.

The conclusion of a treaty between the United States and Corea adds another to the peaceful successes of American diplomacy in the far East. Nearly thirty years ago the American Commodore Perry, overcoming obstacles which had baffled almost every European nation, and without firing a shot or leaving ill-feeling behind, succeeded in opening Japan to foreign intercourse. Four years later Mr. Townsend Harris, the American Envoy, from the seclusion of his legation at Shimoda, without the "moral" support of a single gunboat, negotiated the treaty with the Japanese, which has been the model for all the treaties made up to the present moment with the people. Two years ago Commodore Schufeldt, in the course of a cruise round the world in the United States war vessel Ticonderoga, called into one of the Korean harbors with a letter for the King, expressing the desire of the President for a treaty of amity and commerce. Leaving this document, he departed as peacefully as he had arrived. When the Koreans had had ample time to digest his request and to consult their suzerain, the Emperor of China, the Commodore returned alone, and after a few month's stay in North China, wended his way to the United States to obtain the ratification of a treaty in which the King of Corea expresses "his earnest desire to establish relations between the two countries on a permanent and friendly footing, and to facilitate commercial intercourse." The "solid substratum of force" on which a distinguished English diplomatist said our relations with Eastern countries must alone rest has been conspicuous all through the American officer's negotiations only by its absence.

The history of European intercourse with the inhabitants of the little peninsula in Northeastern China is brief and melancholy. The touching story of the crew of the Dutch vessel wrecked on the Island of Quelpaert in the middle of the seventeenth century, who were detained among the Koreans for more than thirty years, as told by their "Secretary," will be found in the pages of "Pinkerton," and need not be further referred to here. It was not until the treaty of Tien-tsin had opened North China and Manchuria to the zeal of Roman Catholic missionaries that Corea was again visited by Europeans. The Jesuit fathers seem to have made their way there about 1862-63. We have now only their own accounts of what took place. Their efforts to make converts were, they say, crowned with success for a few years. But in 1865 commenced a persecution unparalleled even in the frightful annals of religious persecution in the East. It is said that 150,000 Koreans, men, women and children, lost their lives on this occasion. Of the French priests, four alone escaped in disguise and assisted by some of the faithful of their flock. An attempt was made by the French fleet in the China seas to take vengeance for this slaughter, but it was unsuccessful. Until the history of modern Corea is studied by our scholars in the native works themselves, we can not correctly ascertain the cause of this persecution. Meantime, the student of the history of other Oriental nations who finds analogous events will probably look for analogous causes.

The subsequent attempts of the Jesuits to cross the Korean frontier, and the success that attended them, will be found recorded in the annals of the "Missions Etrangeres." Mgr. Ridel, who evaded the frontier guards and entered the country in 1878, has left us an account of his adventures. He penetrated Corea, he tells us, in the hope of attaining the crown of martyrdom. In this he was disappointed, for he was promptly discovered and imprisoned, to be released a few months afterward at the intercession of the Governments of China and Japan. But tens of thousands of wretched Koreans, who were supposed to be tainted with Christianity, suffered death, many of them with the most horrible torture, because of this gentleman's ambition to be a martyr. An American naval expedition sent to punish an outrage on a ship which sailed up one of the Korean rivers met with little more success than its French predecessor. In 1868 a steamer manned by American and European filibusters set out from Shanghai to rob the tombs of the Korean Kings, either for the sake of the gold coffins in which Mendez Pinto says they were inclosed, or because the Jesuits reported that the body of a dead King could be held for almost any ransom. In 1860 Ignatieff, then Russian representative at Peking, taking advantage of the Chinese difficulties with England and France, obtained the cession of a vast tract of Korean territory lying in the Amour region.

These are a few of the salient points in the history of Korean intercourse with the civilized nations of the West, and it hardly seems a matter for great surprise that Corea should have preferred exclusion to more intercourse of this description. Nor is it difficult to believe the tales told by Japanese travelers of pillars erected over the whole country calling down a curse on the head of him who should first propose friendship with the hated foreigner. Political considerations have ultimately prevailed. Chinese and Japanese statesmen have long been persuaded that the only chance of preserving Corea from absorption into Russia and their own countries from a standing menace was to open it to foreign intercourse. Following their counsels, Corea has now entered the comity of nations. Commercial advantages she has few to offer. Her total trade with Japan during 1881, at the three opened ports, hardly exceeded a quarter of a million sterling. There is said to be much mineral wealth, but this must be mere surmise at present. Trade or no trade, it is to be hoped that the little kingdom which has just come among us will present an instance of at least one Oriental nation with which England can continue to live without violence or bloodshed.—Pall Mall Gazette.

For Destroying Insects.

The following methods of destroying some of the common insect pests are recommended by competent authorities:

Ants.—Take equal quantities of loaf sugar, arsenic, and finely-powdered dried bread; rub them together in a mortar till they are very well mixed. This should be kept in a bottle in readiness for laying small quantities near their haunts. Great care is requisite in the use of this mixture, for it is poisonous to vegetable as well as animal life.

Aphis on Rose Buds.—Syringe the rose with water in which potato peelings have been boiled, and the insects will generally disappear after the first application. This liquid, although it does not injure the plant, will destroy any open flower it touches.

Wireworms in Flower Beds.—To destroy these, take some large potatoes, and cut them up into thick slices, and run a small stick through each; then bury them in the flower beds. On examination every other day several wireworms may be found in each piece of potato.

Slugs.—To destroy slugs in frames, take two drams of corrosive sublimate (poison), and dissolve it in two gallons of boiling water, and water the earth in the frame, plants in pots, etc., with the solution.—Agricultural Exchange.

In Montgomery county, as well as in Mason, the Republicans were obliged to buy their own voters. Votes for John D. White, at Mt. Sterling, cost from $2 to $25. The Republicans there, as here, were well supplied with corruption money, and in the use of it were very active. Montgomery county gave Adams a majority of about 300.

The Cincinnati Commercial says: It was a conspiracy of bosses against our Republican form of Government. They wanted a big boss to parcel out the spoils among an aristocracy of bosses. They were beaten, and Garfield elected President denied his boss and was murdered. He would never have been harmed if he had submitted to the system of the bosses.

What is to be Expected at Grayson.

Vanceburg Courier: A careful investigation warrants the writer in the prediction that when the prisoners are taken to Grayson, an organized and armed force will meet them and demand the prisoners and the fullest satisfaction. One of the most quiet and prominent citizens said "this lawless militia has had its day and we will have ours."

ASHLAND TROUBLE.

What a Few Prominent Kentuckians Say About It.

Special to the Cincinnati Commercial.

LEXINGTON, KY., November 6.—Attorney General Hardin is in the city to-night. Speaking of the Ashland affair, he said it was a wild, unreasonable mob, possessed of the idea that it could take possession of the prisoners without resistance by the soldiers. They miscalculated and the result was the killing of innocent persons, as nearly always happens on such occasions. I was there a few days before the trouble, and the impression prevailed that the prisoners would be given up if demanded.

A detective, just returned from Ashland, says two of the men, who demanded the prisoners from Major Allen, were Jack Spicer and Frank Muttart. They will be, no doubt arrested for conspiracy.

It is freely stated here that the articles written from Ashland and Catlettsburg denouncing the militia as cut-throats, murderers and hell-hounds, emanated from Capt. T. D. Marcum former Register of the Land Office. It is strange that Captain Marcum, himself an ex-soldier of the Union army, could expect men to stand up and be shot down, without resistance, especially when they were acting strictly within the law and lawful discharge of duty. A large number of the soldiers believe that Neal and Craft are guilty. That is their opinion; but they were sent to Ashland as soldiers only, and as such they had but one thing to do; that was, to obey their officers. If commanded to fire, they had to obey.

GOVERNOR BLACKBURN'S THANKS-GIVING PROCLAMATION.

An Official Order of Thanks to the Military for Recent Services.

FRANKFORT, KY., November, 7.—The Governor has issued the following Thanks-giving proclamation:

WHEREAS, A Christian people should be ever mindful of the manifold blessings continually bestowed upon them by a beneficent Creator, and

WHEREAS, The current year has been especially marked by the abundant bestowal of general good health, peace and prosperity throughout this commonwealth; and our common country,

Now, therefore, I, Luke P. Blackburn, governor of the commonwealth of Kentucky, in compliance with a long-established usage, do appoint Thursday, the 30th day of November, 1882, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, and recommend that all secular business be suspended on that day, and the people assemble at their usual places of worship, and return sincere and hearty thanks to Almighty God for his continuous goodness and the blessings so abundantly bestowed upon us.

In witness whereof, I hereunto sign my name and cause the seal of the commonwealth to be affixed. Done at Frankfort, this 6th day of November, A. D. 1882.

LUKE P. BLACKBURN,

By the Governor;
JAMES BLACKBURN, Secretary of State.

THANKS TO THE MILITARY.

HEADQUARTERS KENTUCKY STATE GUARD,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
FRANKFORT, KY., Nov. 4, 1882
Special Orders No. 9.

1. The commander-in-chief takes great pleasure in acknowledging the services of State Guard lately on active duty in Boyd county. The command was called into active service by special orders, to aid the civil authority, to the end that persons accused of the gravest crimes known to the law might have a fair and impartial trial in the courts, and was acting under the orders of civil officers. The task imposed upon the commanding officer was of a responsible and delicate nature, requiring prudence, firmness and soldierly skill. To the command it was a severe test of the State Guard organization, which has not been attained by any sudden emergency or fitful effort, but is the result of patient, persistent, intelligent preparation. The young State Guardsman, detailed on sentry duty at Catlettsburg, was standing guard at every domicile in the Commonwealth, and whilst repelling, with force, the attack of an infuriated and misguided mob, he was simply, but emphatically, announcing that the law must and should be maintained, and that mobs and masked lynchers, assassins, and so-called midnight regulators, must take warning.

The conduct of the commanding officer is fully approved, and that of the entire force is equally deserving of praise. Major John R. Allen and his several staff officers, the officers and soldiers of his battalion, viz: Captain, J. Lampton Price, the officers, and soldiers of the McCreary Guards; Captain D. Vertner Johnson, the officers and soldiers of the Lexington Guards; Captain E. W. Fitzgerald, the officers and soldiers of the Emmet Rifles; Captain Thomas F. Hughes, the officers and soldiers of the Blackburn Guards, and the following, temporarily attached: Captain D. F. C. Weller, the officers and soldiers of Company C, First Regiment—detailed for this service from the several companies composing the regiment; Captain Jo. L. Rodman, the officers and soldiers of the Nuckols Guards; and First Lieutenant C. B. Bly, with the officers and soldiers of the First Section Louisville Light Artillery, will, for duty well performed, accept the sincere thanks of the Governor, their Commander-in-Chief.

By order of the Governor.

J. P. NUCKOLS, Adjutant General.

ROOF PAINTING.

A Few Plain Facts in Regard to TIN and IRON ROOFS.

Preserve your roofs by having a coat of

ARMSTRONG'S ELASTIC ROOF PAINT

Applied on them. After ten years test in different cities in the state of Kentucky, Armstrong's Elastic Roof Paint is acknowledged superior to any other in use. It forms a heavy elastic body smooth and glossy; it will not crack or scale, dries quickly and will remain without repainting from 8 to 10 years. This paint will stop all leaks in tin or iron roofs and remain so for many years. It has been applied to many of the best buildings, both public and private, in this state, of which I have testimonials to show from gentlemen whose standing in society and business qualifications makes their opinion and knowledge of its worth, after having tried it for years on their roofs, which of itself is the best of guarantees of its useful and valuable worth to all who have or metal roofs. If you have a leaky or a worn out roof that has decayed from neglect of being properly covered with paint, and it leaks and your tinner has failed to stop the leaks, give my paint a trial, and if I do not stop the leaks entirely there will be no charge made.

I will remain in this city a few days with the view of introducing my Elastic Paint, of which I am the inventor and manufacturer and sole owner. I manufacture but the two kinds, the Black Elastic and the Elastic Brown. Neither of these paint contain any linseed oil in their composition, and both being fire proof when applied on shingles or wood. The Black Elastic can stand more intense heat than any other paint made or known in this country, and is calculated for tin or iron roofs. n2tf

The Latest.

Cleveland's majority in New York, according to the best estimate, is 172,000. Seventeen Democrats and seventeen Republicans were elected to congress. The Democrats elected a majority of the Assembly.

The majority in Pennsylvania is placed at from 15,000 to 30,000. The congressional delegation stands 15 Democrats and 13 Republicans. The legislature has a Republican majority of two on joint ballot a loss of twenty.

Indiana is Democratic by a majority that may reach 10,000. The indications are that the Democrats have carried eleven congressmen and that the legislature is Democratic.

Illinois is Republican as usual. Thirteen Republicans and six Democrats are elected to congress.

In Massachusetts Butler is elected governor by about 13,000.

In Virginia the Democratic gains and losses on congressmen are about equal.

Bate, the Readjuster candidate for governor of Tennessee, was elected by 50,000.

In Kansas Glyck, the Democratic candidate for governor, was elected.

New Hampshire gives a Democratic majority of about 4,000.

In Michigan the Democrats elected three congressmen and four other districts are in doubt.

The New York Tribune's summary of the forty-eighth congress is: Democrats, 177; Republicans, 146; Independents, 2.

A Curious Swindle.

A most unique swindle is unearthed in the current number of London Truth. During the past few years "philanthropists" on this side have turned their attention to the desire which is felt by many English boys whose parents have a little money to qualify to become farmers in America. These "philanthropists" have their partners in London, who, in some cases, have opened offices, and in others affected a quasi-official connection with the Canadian and American Governments. These speculators ostensibly undertake to place young men under the care of farmers in this country upon the payment of from $250 to $500 a year, in reality, however, their prime object is plunder. In plausible prospectuses they hold out as a bait that two or three years' tuition will give the boys such a mastery of the science of agriculture that the road to fortune will be much easier than "rolling off a log." From the experience given by some of the disgusted youths who have straggled home again these swindlers handle their victims in this fashion: After the friends of the youth have paid for one year's tuition in farming, he finds himself in an American town. He is frequently told that there is no vacancy for the moment, and he has to pass some weeks at a hotel. In the end, room is found for him in the farming establishment of the "philanthropist," or he is placed with a farmer. In the first instance he is left to idle away his time, he is half-starved, and he drinks whisky with his fellow pupils; in the second instance he is either idle, or he is put to painting fences, or some other such employment. Often before the end of the first year he gives the whole thing up in despair, and returns to England, having acquired a number of bad habits, and as ignorant of everything connected with farming as when he left it. The cases cited show that this business thrives. One speculator is mentioned who within the past five years has managed to obtain premiums from more than 600 lads. Suppose the parents of these boys paid the full premium, and that the "philanthropist" succeeded in securing the rates from each for two years. This would net just $600,000. The cost of carrying on such a business is comparatively trifling, the profits are enormous. The places in which these agents mostly thrive are said to be Ontario, Iowa, Minnesota and Texas. This scheme should commend itself to our gentlemanly bank breakers. It is quite as profitable in the long run and attended with absolutely no risk.—Chicago Herald.

Moths.

The word moth was derived from two Gothic words meaning to gnaw and to eat. It was formally applied to moth-worms only, but is now also applied to millers or "night butterflies." When we say moths we generally mean the little wormlike caterpillars that eat woolen goods. In May or June the cloths moth miller (Tinea flavifrontella) is of a light buff, brown-color, with a silky luster and a long narrow body. It flies around at night, and every one seen should be killed if possible. When it rests it does not fold its wings out straight, but rather rolls them around the body. The miller searches for a good place where plenty of wool is found and after depositing the eggs it dies. The eggs hatch in about fifteen days. The larvæ begins to gnaw little burrows through the substance in which they are, covering themselves with its small particles. In the fall they cease eating, make a sort of little cocoon out of their food, remain dormant all winter, and in the following spring change into pupæ before emerging. The good old plan of house-cleaning in early June, sunning and beating all wool articles, and the use of tobacco, camphor and carbolic acid, are well-known to all good housekeepers. Furs may be kept from destruction by placing camphor in the box and sealing them up by pasting paper over the crack between the cover and the box. Dealers pack furs in common tar roofing paper. One man recommends petroleum paper for the same purpose.—Alfred B. Wallon, in Iowa State Register.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District. ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there, I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great. Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it, or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. j27d.
